2. The judgments and appraisals expressed in the original report have been reduced to what is believed to be an allowable minimum. Although the sanitized report still gives some indication of U.S. interest in the nature and objectives of Soviet activities in Antarctica, the depth of such U.S. interest and associated effort is no more than any foreigner would expect it to be. If any Communist attempt is made to analyze the sanitized report for the determination of the extent of U.S. intelligence success on the measure of the effectiveness of Soviet security controls, we feel that such results would be inconclusive.

3. Although the report has been sanitized, it is our feeling that the report does not become unclassified. Advice on this matter would be appreciated.
